4:00 p.m. Public Hearing on updated Greenville Sewer Use Ordinance

Selectperson O'Keefe made a motion to open the Public Hearing on the updated Sewer Use Ordinance. Chairman Blease seconded. Motion passed unanimously.

Leon Proctor asked what basically has changed since this first came out? David Hughes from Woodard & Curran noted that there have been a number of changes. He added some language that was not in our ordinance that is in the EPA January 2007 update to Model Ordinance. They updated Industrial Discharge permits, inserted some information on notification of slug loads and violations, process for applications. It added new limits for acetic acids on the industrial side. There were also some updates with regards to fees and fines for industrial users. The rates for residential users has stayed the same

Keith Silsby asked what the thought process is for acetic acid? At 100 coming into the plant before causing the plant process issues, resulting in the plant not meeting their permit. There are only two sources that we get acetic acid from (1) is the lagoons and they aren't aerated so we cannot affect them so it is even more important that we control it from Pilgrim Foods. Acetic Acid is essentially a food for the organisms and if you get too much food you get organisms that you don't want. This could ultimately cause bulking with solids going into the river.

Mr. Silsby hand delivered a written document
